Superintendent's Report: JUHSD To Have 7400 Students By 1966

The Jefferson Union High School board of trustees met Tuesday night, September 11, and heard the annual report from District Superintendent Edward Morgan.

Morgan opened up his superintendent's report with a history of the attedance growth of the district since its inception in 1922. The 1922-23 attendance rate, according to Morgan, was 45.88 students.

This year, the JUHSD, which includes four high schools, is expected to surpass the 5,000 mark in daily attendance.

The total attendance for Tuesday's first day of school was 4820—an increase of 763 over the 1961 opening day. Morgan anticipates that the total attendance will reach the 5212 mark this year. Westmoor led the schools Tuesday with 1746 students present out of 1894 registered.

The number represents an increase of over 400 percent in the last ten years. The district reached the 1000 plateau in daily attendance during the 1952-53 year, and since then has risen at an astronomical rate.

The breakdown this year at the four high schools is as follows:

Westmoor—1800; Jefferson—1575; Terra Nova—1000, and Oceana—650. At present the district has a capacity of 5600.

Morgan presented a startling figure when he gave the predicted number of daily attendance for 1966—four years from new—as being in excess of 7400.

At present the district is in preliminary negotiations for a fifth high school site which will be located somewhere in the Crocker Estates. The site is expected to be agreed upon by the conclusion of this year and construction is expected to begin the early part of next year.

In the past six years, since 1956 when Morgan was appointed superintendent, the district has constructed or has under construction now, 472,000 new square feet of classroom space. This amounts to 181 new classrooms at a cost of $11,405,000.

Morgan also anticipates the building of two high schools in the distant future when the Christian Dairy and Bernardi Ranch lands are developed.

In other items, Morgan also warned on the necessity of keeping the present budget within its bounds. "We must live within the income allotted to us and balance our expenditures from here on out," Morgan adamantly told the trustees and audience.

Morgan said that on July 1, 1961 the district had a balance to start the new year of $750,000. This past July the monies struck a new low of $193,000, forcing the district to purchase $700,000 in tax anticipation notes, and that by next July the balance will have plunged to a lowly $112,000—making it necessary to follow a very tight budget.

The Superintendent also gave a breakdown on this year's operating budget of $3,296,000. 76.3 percent of the total will go for instructional expenses, which includes teachers' salaries, principals' salaries, classified help salaries, books and supplies. Another 12.5 percent of the budget will go towards the operating of the plants and 4.7 percent for fixed charges.

Maintenance will take up 2.8 percent, administration 2.6 percent and health services .9 percent.

Morgan also reported that Dr. John Ivan's duties will be exclusively as director of instruction and data, and that his former duty as director of curriculum will now function under the principals of the four high schools.

Ivan will be a resource expert with the task of gathering materials while the four principals will act as chairmen of committees of curriculum with the various department heads of the school district.

The report also showed that the average salary of the Jefferson District teacher is $7633—which is a "comfortable" average of the overall state picture.

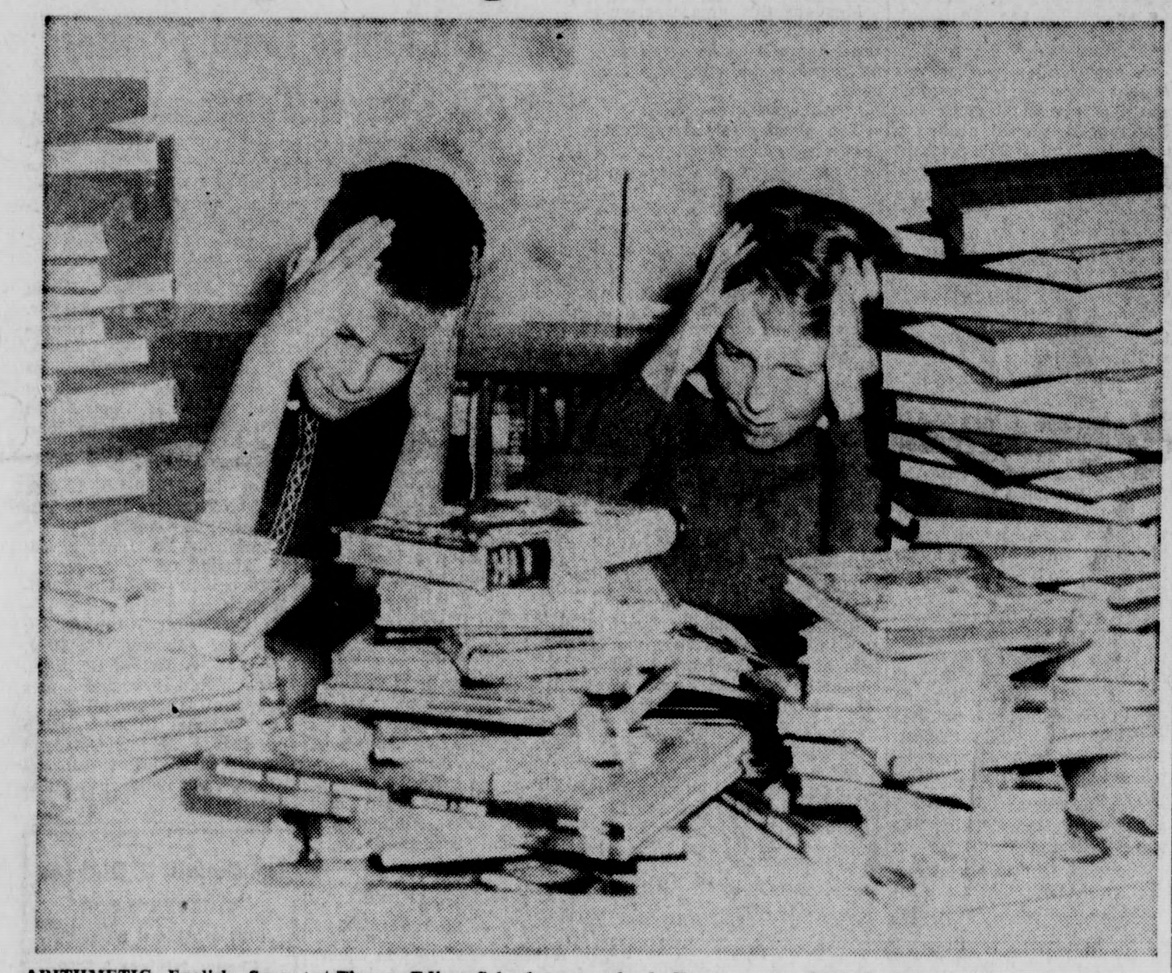
Ring, Ring Goes The Bell



ARITHMETIC, English, Spanish, Social Studies, History. The brains of Steve Long, left, and Debbie Jose, two students at Thomas Edison School, seem to be overburdened with the first day's homework following yesterday's opening day of school. However, we tend to think that it is an exaggeration and that the leisures of summer are still dancing around in their heads. Some 15,647 students in the Jefferson Union High School and Elementary District returned to classes yesterday.

Often-Flooded South San Francisco Views Annexation

By JACK WOOD

While the cities of Daly City, San Bruno, Pacifica and Colma, have vetoed participation in the Colma Creek Flood Control district, South San Francisco, faced with the bulk of the cost of this $2,770,000 project, has taken a view at annexation.

The proposed annexation areas, as submitted for study in a survey of annexation costs and benefits and city growth by William Spangler & Associates, Menlo Park, are in the city's water runoff and natural watershed areas — Westbrough, San Bruno mountain east of Daly City, the Christen lands.

Service to Westborough

The planning area includes the Callen and Christen lands in the drainage area to the west, extending up to the ridge at Skyline boulevard, and the Crocker Estate lands on the southern and eastern slopes of the San Bruno Mountains.

Brisbane and the Bay front lands, between San Francisco and the northern city limits, have also been included.

Westborough receives its water services from South San Francisco. However, the city, after some stalling the issue, lost out to annex the area and the developer went ahead with construction of an unincorporated area. The city has, however, made suggestions on the density requirements of Westborough.

Storm Damage

South San Francisco has paid out an average of $50,000 per year for removal of silt caused by storm damages and flooding.

The three most recent floods occurred during 1952, 1955 and 1958. All caused heavy damage, disrupted communications, halted work and in 1958 caused loss of life. In general, flooding has occurred on the average of every three or four years.

Daly City, Colma, Pacifica and San Bruno officials contend that since San Francisco would be the principal city to benefit from the flood control district, it should pay the entire cost of the $2,770,000 project. A hearing on the problem will be held September 26 with the San Mateo County board of supervisors.

Historic Flooding

Prior to settlement of the area, Colma Creek discharged into a swamp tidal marsh which extended from San Francisco Bay to about the location of Magnolia avenue in South San Francisco. As it meandered across this flood plain it split into many distributaries as it neared the bay.

A continuing program of attrition, including railroad and highway construction and land development, has destroyed the distributaries by blocking off and filling up the waterways. Colma Creek and Navigable Slough are all that remain of the many original storm water

Estranged Wife Stabs Husband

A meeting between a husband and his estranged wife ended in violence in South San Francisco last Saturday night, Sept. 8.

Arnold Calonje, 24, 709 San Jose avenue, San Francisco, was stabbed in the abdomen with an eight-inch knife by his wife, Maria, 32, at her home, 755 Commercial avenue, South San Francisco.

The wife then took her wounded mate for treatment to Mission Emergency in San Francisco, where San Francisco police informed South San Francisco police of the assault.

She was later arrested in South San Francisco and charged with assault with a deadly weapon. She was released on bail.

Car Misses Curve

The victim, Francis Taggart, was taken to Peninsula Hospital in Burlingame for treatment.

KO Polio Vaccine Stations Set Up In County Schools

K.O. Polio vaccine stations will be set up at 46 schools—within easy walking distance for almost everyone—in San Mateo County Sunday, Sept. 23, in the greatest community effort in the county's history, K.O. Polio campaign leaders announced today.

Hundreds of volunteers from all walks of life will staff the stations on K.O. Polio Sunday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., when Sabin oral polio vaccine drops will be offered to the county's 460,000 residents.

Manning the K.O. Polio stations will be San Mateo County physicians, nurses, school officials and county employees; pharmacists, Boy and Girl Scouts and members of many civic groups and school organizations.

They will join volunteers in five other Bay Area counties in a massive effort to immunize over three million people with the advanced Sabin drops and end polio forever here.

San Mateo County physicians stress that even those who have already had Salk serum shots must take the Sabin drops. They explain that Sabin drops provide lasting immunity, need no boosters and keep persons taking them from being "carriers," giving the disease to others.

Salk shots offer none of these advantages, they point out.

Sabin drops are easily swallowed on a sugar cube. A nominal donation of 25 cents a dos-

Macy's To Build Huge Store In Westlake Shopping Center

Macy's California will build a large and complete department store in the Westlake Shopping Center, it was announced jointly last week by Ernest L. Molloy, president of the California division of Macy's, and Henry Doelger, Westlake's owner. The Macy expansion will represent a total investment of nine million dollare.

The store will duplicate the merchandise departments and services of Macy's in San Francisco.

On land leased from Doelger, Macy's will build a structure of three 80,000 square feet levels, 240,000 square feet overall. The store, which will combine all the newest innovations in decor, customer convenience and comfort, will be located at the head of the Westlake Mall, between J. C. Penney's and the Westlake Market.

To accommodate the additional customer care which this extensive new shopping service will attract to the center, Macy's will build a sub-ground level of parking for use by customers to all center facilities; and Doelger will double-deck the existing parking lots on both sides of the mall flanking the new store.

The start of construction of Macy's Westlake is tentatively scheduled for either late fall of this year or early spring of 1963.

SSF Annexation

Since there is no comprehensive plan for land utilization or development, a hit or miss drainage and flood control pattern exists. Flood damage potential has grown and is a deterent to the growth and economy of the area.

Annexation Policy

Regarding South San Francisco's annexation policy, Spangler & Associates have this to say:

"South San Francisco is not faced with annexation problems of the scape and difficulty found in many fast-growing California cities. There is no large unincorporated built-up urban fringe area surrounding the city.

"Its boundaries are fairly compact and simple, with few incorporated pockets within the city and no long extensions of city territory into the unincorporated area.

"Expansion can take two major directions: To the west (Junipero Serra-Skyline) to provide for additional residential growth and to the north (tidelands-Brisbane-Bayshore) to provide for additional industrial growth. This north area also contains the only sizeable unincorporated residential section near the city at this time, Bayshore city, which is not separated from South San Francisco by the newly incorporated city of Brisbane.

South San Francisco incorporated in 1908 with broad boundaries, extending from Hillside boulevard to El Camino Real, and from Holly street out into the bay. This land area was about 4½ miles and no annexations were necessary until 1940. However, they have been continuous since then, totalling about 1,800 acres, or nearly three square miles.

Most of this area was annexed prior to 1955. Since that time, there have been ten annexations, aggregating only 110 acres.

Annexation Problems

The planners also point out that annexation would present its problems since largest drainage area is the Colma Creek basin and parts of this are already occupied by three other cities—Colma, Daly City and San Bruno.

The topography of the northern area, if annexed would also present some problems.

"The area also breaks into several geographic units. The present road net is not cohesive, and economic and community identity factors have been weakened by the increased commuting common to the Bay Area in recent years."

900 San Mateo County Golfers Play In Cancer Tournament

More than 900 San Mateo County golfers participated in the fourth annual Babe Didrickson Zaharias Memorial Golf Tournament at nine area courses, according to a report this week by chairman Mrs. Warren B. Parsons.

Biggest support, final figures indicated, came from those who play at San Mateo Municipal Golf Course. A total of 273 entered from the Muni layout, with 44 successful in their "beat the pros" bid against scores of 70 and 69, turned in by Billy Casper, Jr., and Mickey Wright, respectively.

Muni also had the county's lowest net score, a blazing 59 by Al Molina of San Mateo. Others winning awards for scores with handicap below the pros' were Guido DeLuca of South San Francisco, 60 net; Mrs. Mickey Patsel of San Mateo at 64, and Mrs. John Cocchi of San Carlos, 65.

Mrs. Parsons said those most responsible for Muni's top-notch support of the event were Tom Fry, head pro; starter Freddie Albrecht and his assistants, Sam Baker, John Michel and Mike Gee; volunteer co-chairmen Mrs. John LaFata and Mrs. C. W. Bettin, and assistants Mrs. Paul Potter and Mrs. John Shellman.

Leaders at other clubs reporting winners:

Daly City Receives $1116 From California Peace Officers Fund

The City of Daly City today was presented with a check in the amount of $1,116 as its share of the 1962 allocation from the California Peace Officers' Training Fund. Edward Frank accepted the check on behalf of the city.

Daly City is one of 200 cities and counties which have adhered on a voluntary basis with the California Peace Officer Standards and Training Program. During the 20 months that the program has been in operation, jurisdictions which adhered to the standards have received a total of $530,969.47 in aid from the Peace Officers' Training Fund.

The objective of the program is to raise the level of competence of local police officers and deputy sheriffs through establishment of minimum recruitment and training standards. During the 1962 period of allocation, the city of Daly City employed and trained five officers. The officers received their training at the College of San Mateo, which meets the high standards required of a Commission-certified peace officer training academy. Forty-one California colleges and junior colleges also play a prominent role in the overall training program. Chief Petrocchi reported that each police recruit trainee received a total of 212 hours of classroom instruction in addition to field training.

In the current year, 1,803 peace officers averaged 389 hours of classroom training in the basic recruit course. A total of 2,279 peace officers have been trained since the program began field operations, October, 1960.

Of interest to the taxpayers is the fact that no tax funds are paid into the California Peace Officers' Training Fund, which helps to finance the program. The fund is financed by a 5 per cent assessment on criminal fines, collected by local courts and forwarded to the State Treasurer. Thus, the criminal who makes the training necessary is the one who pays the bill.

The commission has determined that 14,149,214 California citizens or 86 per cent of the total population are served by police and sheriffs meeting the minimum standards.

Laguna Salada Schools To Again Serve Hot Lunches

Cafeterias in six of the Laguna Salada schools will begin serving hot lunches today, September 12. No cafeteria service will be offered in the Linda Mar and Sanchez schools until the opening of Ortega School late in the semester.

Bob Fizer, administrative assistant, reports that the prices of lunches will be the same as last year, 35 cents per lunch. Parents are encouraged to have their children purchase weekly ($1.75) or bi-weekly ($3.50) meal tickets. School lunch menus will be distributed to the public each month and menus also will be published in local newspapers.

Fizer also stated that the snack program will be continued beginning September 24 in all the schools, including Linda Mar and Sanchez schools.

Last year, according to Fizer, an average of 1,200 pupils took daily advantage of the hot lunches served in the school cafeterias, managed by Mrs. Lydia Cooper.

Cancer Study Offers New Hope

The mysteries of cancer seem to keep broadening, as scientists continue their investigations of a growing list of possible suspects. Witness the recent report by the United States Public Health Service showing that lung cancer death rates show wide variation from city to city throughout the nation.

On the other hand, press reports from the recent International Cancer Congress, with top scientists from all over the world participating, indicate the growing belief among scientists that viruses play a key role in cancer causation, and that real progress is being made in the search for the causes of the disease.

The virus theory assumes increasing importance, the scientists tell us, because, if correct, it holds the hope that a protective vaccine may be developed against cancer.

There is a moral in the development of the virus theory — for scientists and for the general public.

It wasn't too many years ago that the few scientists who believed in the virus theory of causation had trouble scraping up the funds they needed to conduct their research. Somehow they did, and today their work is being widely recognized.

During these years, the public has been deluged with reports about things that were said to cause cancer.

Josh Billings once said: "It is better to know nothing than to know what ain't so."

It seems clear today that scientists do not know the basic causes of cancer of any kind. Yet there is hope for an eventual solution because scientific knowledge and perspective have grown immensely.

Let's All Help!

Cystic Fibrosis, a dread child's disease, will be the subject of an intensive fund raising campaign throughout the month of September. Gov. Edmund G. Brown issued the following statement, supporting the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation and the work it is doing through its local chapters:

"I commend the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation, especially the San Francisco chapter, for the excellent leadership being given in the determined effort to help children afflicted with this dread disease.

Much assistance is possible, when cystic fibrosis is diagnosed and treated early. Progress is being made, although a cure for this inherited disease is not yet known.

"So that we may some day have preventive or curative measures, I urge Californians to give generously to support the San Francisco chapter of the Foundation. It is noteworthy that the National Foundation is providing support for a Cystic Fibrosis Center in Oakland at the Children's Hospital of the East Bay.

"I hope there can be others. Much depends upon the support given the foundation. I know it will be forthcoming in northern California."

Highway Robbery Up-To-Date

Those of our readers who are contributors — and that includes most of them — should be interested in the recent announcement of the United States Bureau of Public Roads that a record-breaking 5.6 billion dollars in highway-user taxes had been collected in 1961.

Of this total, an estimated $400 million had been diverted from highway purposes to finance general state activities.

And this fiscal sleight of hand at the state level is but a patch of the 1.5 billion dollars more that the federal government has chosen to divert from the federal highway-used kitty for general governmental uses.

To us motorists who have seen auto fees and gasoline taxes climbing sharply in recent years as road building and maintenance costs have increased, such colossal diversion of highway taxes from their intended purpose may be confusing but it's not amusing.

In fact, it is strongly reminiscent of the activities of "road agents" of an earlier day.

Time To Think About Domestic Aid

There is no need for this Congress to appropriate a thin dime for foreign aid.

Representative Otto E. Passman, Louisiana Democrat and chairman of the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Foreign Aid, declared, amid applause from both sides of the aisle:

"The fact of the matter is that if the Congress should adjourn sine die without even passing a foreign aid appropriations bill, sufficient funds are on hand from prior years' appropriations to operate this world-wide program at the present rate of expenditures full-steam-ahead for 25 painful and expensive months for the overburdened taxpayers of the United States."

By JACK WOOD

Councilmen in South San Francisco have agreed to request a study of the need for emergency hospital facilities for the northeastern part of the county. Councilmen agreed that their part of the county has no emergency facilities.

South San Francisco voters will ballot on a $1,893,000 bond issue to finance needed enlargement of the adjoining South San Francisco-San Bruno sewage disposal plant. Councilmen introduced an ordinance placing the local issue on the November ballot.

A resolution unconditionally opposed to Proposition 23, the State Senate reapportionment measure that will appear on the November 6 ballot, has been adopted by the county board of supervisors.

The board passed the resolution after hearing State Senator Richard J. Dolwig describe the measure as an attempted power grab by Southern California interests.

An estimated 111,500 students in San Mateo County returned to school this week. Enrollment at College of San Mateo is expected to reach 4,500.

In addition, 10,000 of the county's youth are leaving to attend college and preparatory schools elsewhere.

PROCLAMATION

Given in Daly City, Calif., this 11th day of September, 1962.

JOSEPH J. VERDUCCI,
Mayor of Daly City.

Call The Family Together, Work Out Fire Escape Plan

Would your family know what to do if fire should strike your home tonight?

If you can't answer affirmatively, you should immediately call a family conference to work out a fire escape plan.

The first two things you should do are: (1) Get everybody out of the house quickly, and (2) Call the fire department. In most homes, this should take less than a minute. However, if the fire has gained headway, getting out of the house could be the most important single act in your life and that of your family.

There are certain things that you can do to be prepared if fire should strike your home, says the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

First and foremost, everyone in your family, from small children to elderly people, should know alternate means of escape from the home.

Draw Up Escape Plan

The National Board recommends that tonight you sit down with the members of your household and work out an escape plan.

If you live in a conventional two-story home, you should plan two possible escape routes to the ground from any upstairs bedroom. Then, if flames or smoke cut off one of the escape routes, you will have the alternate one to use.

It is particularly important that small children and elderly people know routes to the outside and are made aware that with the first smell of smoke, they should leave the house quickly and not return.

If you employ a baby sitter, be sure the sitter is acquainted with your plan for escape from fire. And if you have house guests, it's a good plan to acquaint them with the escape routes also.

What do you do if, say, you are sleeping in an upstairs bedroom and smell smoke or hear the crackle of flames?

Here's what you should do:

First, don't rush out into the hallway immediately. Instead, go to the door and place the palm of your hand on it.

If the door does not feel hot, you may open it slightly. Holding your head away, brace the door with your foot and put your hand across the opening to find out how hot the air is. If the hallway appears cool and no flames or smoke are pouring up the stairway, you may be able to use the stairs as a route of escape.

If the door is hot, the hallway may be already aflame or filled with hot and toxic gases.

If you have another escape route, such as through the window and onto the roof of a porch, use this route.

Keep Bedroom Door Closed

It is important that you keep the bedroom door closed. A door is a good fire wall which may give you two to five minutes of extra time if flames come up the stairway.

If the hall outside your upstairs bedroom is aflame, go to the window and call for help, but don't jump out. You could injure yourself needlessly.

If flames start eating through the door, and it becomes necessary to jump to the ground, drop pillows, clothing, bedding or anything else soft on the ground beneath the window. This will give you a cushion to land on. Then, carefully, lower yourself over the window sill to reduce the distance to the ground and drop onto the pile of bedding.

Propose More Financial Aid To California Aged

More financial help on medical care costs will be provided California's near-needy elderly if success meets an appeal to be made by the California Medical Association to the state legislature.

Proposals now being prepared by the association would modify eligibility requirements in the existing Rattigan Act, which provides medical assistance for the aged (MAA) in California under the federal Kerr-Mills Law and which went into effect Jan. 1, 1962.

Of major concern to the medical profession, according to Dr. mer W. Wheeler, president of theO association, is the present requirement that no assistance can be provided until after the patient has spent at least 30 days in a hospital or nursing home.

"This is inequitable and does not provide for payment of care urgently needed in many cases," he said.

The association will seek a substitute of a maximum sum the patient would be required to pay for hospital or nursing home care, "such as $400," after which MAA would take over. It also believes that "it is not medically, socially or economically proper or necessary to require in all instances that eligibility be made possible only through hospitalization," Dr. Wheeler said.

It's News To Vets

Q—What happened to the old Veterans Bureau?

A—The Veterans Bureau was established Aug. 9, 1921, and took over the functions of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance as well as those vocational training duties which had been handled by the Federal Board for Vocational Education, and those duties of the Public Health Service that had to do with physical examination, care and treatment of veterans. Nine years later, in July, 1930, the functions of the Pension Bureau of the Interior Department and the functions of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers were added to the work of the Veterans Bureau and the entire organization was re-named the Veterans Administration.

Q—How much was paid out as a "bonus" to World War I veterans?

A—Under the Veterans Readjusted Compensation Act of 1936, the VA has paid out just over $3.8 billion.

Q—Has the so-called "Peacetime Veterans Education Act" been passed by this session of Congress?

A—No act nor law providing federal education for "peacetime" servicemen had been passed by Congress as of Aug. 15, 1962.

The View From .. Behind The Badge

Written and Edited by Daly City Police Department

A matter of principle .....

"That the police are not above the law, but are subject to it like any ordinary citizen, and are answerable for their actions . . . "

So said Sir Richard Mayne and Colonel Sir Charles Rowan when they laid down for the London Metropolitan Police in 1829 the principles which apply to the police today.

The good department is one which will subject itself to the severest kind of self scrutiny. Scandal can be avoided, or at least minimized, by the washing of one's own linen, at such times when that linen becomes soiled.

Who will police the police, if not they themselves? Because of the peculiarly sensitive area in which the police operate, a department swings like a weathervane to the winds of public criticism. As a result, the department vigorously polices it's own people. It is an occupational hazard for the officer to be accused of wrongs (sometimes real, often fancied, occasionally malicious).

When information is received, from any source, concerning an officer's alleged misdeeds, the charges are investigated. This is how it came to be that investigating supervisors staked out one of their own men a couple of weeks ago.

Information had been received that an officer was a thief, and that he stole from buildings where he had located open doors in the course of his patrol. No substantiation of the charge was possible. It was decided to check on the man's actions. He was staked out. A sneaky method? Perhaps. If he was guilty, then he would be a sneak, and such a method would be necessary to apprehend him. If he were not guilty, then he should be cleared.

So it was arranged that a hardware store have an unlocked door one night. This, with the cooperation of the merchant. Staked out across the street were three policemen. They were a Detective, a Lieutenant and a Sergeant. The Detective represented the Chief's Office; the Lieutenant was the watch commander, on his regular night off; the other man was the Patrol Sergeant of the watch, returned from vacation for the purpose of this detail.

They are in much the same position of the woman who occasionally looks at her hose. She looks for a run in the stocking, but hopes not to find it. They are looking for a law violation, and a violation of trust, but hope that they find one is not existent.

After a four-hours of observation, the suspected policeman was observed to be on foot patrol in the area. He was checking the security of the commercial establishments on the block. As he walked from place to place, checking doors and windows, he came to the hardware store. He discovered the open door. He did not enter.

He worked strictly according to the book, and followed departmental policy in that he retreated to the nearby call box and summoned assistance. Another officer was dispatched to the scene. The second officer had at no time been a suspect in the matter. Together the two officers entered the establishment. They investigated the interior in an efficient and matter of fact manner. They concluded that burglars were not present. They summoned the owner, who responded to the scene and locked the door. The two officers returned to patrol.

The investigating supervisors were conscious of a lifting of tension. The patroling officers had stolen nothing and had behaved exemplarily in every way. The investigators had been fully prepared to arrest and book a fellow policeman—and were relieved and happy that it was unnecessary. In their opinion the information received was erronious. The suspected officer was clear and clean. No scandal would touch the Department.

The investigators searched out the two officers. They were truthful. You were suspected, the one man was told. You were watched, they were both told. You passed your test, it was added.

Although there had been no personal animosity in the investigation, it had been, as always, embarrassing to have been watching one of your own. The suspected, and cleared, man was a little angry. Who could blame him? Any innocent man would be angry, under the circumstances.

But he understood, and the investigators made no apologies. They were policemen and supervisors, and had been doing a job—unpleasant, of course, but a job. Happily, the information did not check out. Happily, no arrest had been necessary. Happily, screaming headlines were unnecessary and not forthcoming.

As a matter of principle, the case was closed.

Life Long Learning Offered At College Of Notre Dame

In order to understand the world around us it has become increasingly necessary for everyone to add to the sum of his knowledge and follow a pattern of lifelong learning.

College of Notre Dame, Belmont, the only four-year liberal arts college in San Mateo County, is offering a varied curriculum to both men and women through their evening division, beginning Wednesday, Sept. 12. Classes of general cultural value with appeal to everyone, subjects for teachers and librarians and some studies of special interest to business personnel are being offered during the fall, 1962, semester.

Oil painting for senior citizens, taught by Sister Marie of St. Joseph, attracted a class of 22 in the spring semester. Among them was Mr. Joseph B. Gaffney, of Belmont, who had been registered during the fall semester also. The members of the class organized their own exhibit at the end of the term, framed and hung their paintings and titled them.

This last activity created a great deal of amusement for the class. Sister Marie commented that "their works were quite good, too, and that Mr. Gaffney was most helpful to his fellow classmates." This is the only offering of its type for these senior citizens in the Belmont-San Carlos area. There is another oil painting course open to all ages, and one in printing for teachers.

Music is being taught by Verne M. Sellin, who was recently appointed conductor of the San Francisco Youth Symphony Orchestra. Other courses in the cultural fields are Great Books, Great Books of China, taught by Dr. Shau Wing Chan of Stanford; Literature of Contemporary China, Philosophy with Mark Sullivan presenting an introduction to existentialism, and a class in general economics for the layman.

The College is offering a convenient opportunity to those persons wishing to obtain a general understanding of property and liability insurance and bonding, and those who wish to prepare for the chartered Property and Casualty Underwriters examinations. This course is presented by George Bingham of Menlo Park.

The National Association of Insurance Agents recommends this study to its membership in order to prepare for the award of the Insurance Institute Certificate. Of interest to area men and women will be another course in business administration, Accounting, and from the Psychology Department, Human Relations in Business.

For further information, write to Evening Division Office, College of Notre Dame, Belmont, or telephone LY 3-7676.

Forty deputy registrars are stationed throughout the city with locations and hours designed to make registration convenient for every citizen, not now registered, to get on the election rolls for the general election on November 6.

Rogers' announcement was particularly directed to new residents and persons who have moved since last registering. To qualify a new resident must have resided in California since Nov. 6, 1961, and in San Francisco since Aug. 8, 1962. town talk

By JACK WOOD

Summer came a bit belated this year in Daly City. Maybe it was that moment you saw some kids jumping through the sprinklers in Marchanbks Park. It might have been that sunny day at the Westlake Mall.

Or maybe it was the day you walked down the patch to Thorton Beach, or took a close look at Lake Merced, or the new Cypress Hills golf course.

There were a few hot days. But, only a very few. And old man fog came drifting in after a hot spell on June 21 and stayed and stayed and stayed.

Here's hoping that the real warm weather has been holding out for Daly City and will come in and stay throughout the fall and winter. We, who have bravely stuck out this most miserable of summers deserve it.

As for me, I will make one quick sally into the northlands to try to find the elusive sun. I will first visit a Sun Dance at Guerneville to see where it is made.

If the Indians don't clue me in, I will try the mouth of the Klamath, seeking true wisdom from the wiley steelhead salmon.

I know there's sun, somewhere, I know it. I shall report where it is.

Dave Sumbardo, assistant city manager at South San Francisco, has recently returned to work after taking in the sights of Paris, London and the Rhine. Dave, while in London, visited the House of Wax and the House of Horrors, where he saw a life-sized dummy of the late Caryl Chessman, seated in a "green room."

New Assistant Principal At Linda Mar School

The new assistant principal of Linda Mar School is Thomas W. Collins. A former school administrator from Lake Tahoe, Collins, 37, has just returned to this country from Europe where he served as principal of several U. S. Air Force elementary schools in England and Germany.

Prior to his five years of administrative work at Lake Tahoe, Collins taught in that area and also in Menlo Park. He is a graduate of the University of Nevada and he completed his Master of Arts Degree at Stanford University in 1952. While in England, the new assistant principal studied at Oxford University.

Collins, who is a member of several educational associations, is a Phi Delta Kappan and he is listed in the 1956 edition of Who's Who in American Education. During World War II he served aboard a cruiser in the Pacific area. He has been a member of Toastmasters International and is a past president of the Lions Club at Lake Tahoe.

Collins and his wife Gene, who also is a teacher, are moving to the area with their 14-month-old daughter, Katherine.

People Of Jewish Faith Look Forward To The Coming High Holiday Season

By RABBI SHORE

People of the Jewish faith are looking forward to the coming High Holiday Season which brings to one's mind the solemnity and the dignity of an ancient people, trying to keep aloft the spiritual values of life.

Today, more so than at any other time in Jewish history, people are mindful of the need for tranquility and peace of mind.

The fears and worries as a result of political tensions in many parts of the world are real and nerve wracking. Surely, most people rely upon the political leaders of our country to guide America and to lead its millions of inhabitants to safety and to security, but much remains to be done in order to bring the present strife-torn society to a more peaceful station.

American Jews have an added obligation to their people for they are the custodians of their brethren all over the world. Anxious to preserve the great Jewish heritage in all of its forms and facets, they are looking for unity and devotion on the part of the entire American Jewish community, which consists of millions of people divided into hundreds of congregations throughout this land.

What better place is there for contemplation and prayer than the Synagogue—Israel's ancient tradition. Only God in Heaven may help humanity solve its problems and bring unto us a world of peace and happiness.

American Jews hope that the Jewish year 5723, since creation, which will be ushered in September 29, will bring joy and happiness to all Americans, regardless of creed or color.

Also joining the Vista Mar staff are student teachers who will be working with resident teachers for a period of approximately eight weeks, including Mrs. Deanna Monasch, first grade; Miss Maurine Daley, second grade; Mrs. Katherine Antongiovanni, second and third grade combination; Mrs. Cleo Nogara, third grade.

Resident teachers working with these students are Mrs. Paula Shepard, Miss Mary Helen Monroe, Mrs. Jane Cain and Miss Peggy Dwyer.

Room environment at Vista Mar acted as motivation to stimulate and excite children to the coming academic concepts and experience which they will realize during the school year. Interest centers and attractive thought provoking and problem solving bulletin boards were arranged by teachers prior to the opening of school.

This kind of room environment encourages children in areas of research and also makes them aware of the kinds of organization which is concurrent with sequential learning experiences.

Pacifica Nursery School Still Has Class Openings

The Pacifica Nursery School, located at the First Baptist Church, 610 Edgemar avenue in Pacifica, has a few openings left for its fall semester, which began Tuesday, September 11. Those wishing enrollment forms or information may contact Jane Stillman at EL 9-1036.

The parent-participating nursery school, which is non-profit and non-sectarian, is being conducted as part of the adult education division of Jefferson Union High School. Therefore, the Tuesday evening meetings are actually classes in child development and guidance.

The school is open for children from two years and nine months to kindergarten age and they may be enrolled for either a three- or five-day week program in which they participate in painting and crafts, music play and dancing, listening to stories, and outdoor play on bikes and gym sets.

Occasional excursions to various points of interest, such as the zoo, the junior museum in Golden Gate Park, and Shamrock Farms are also enjoyed.

Through these activities, a child is able to learn the "give and take" of getting along with other children of their own age and have friendly contact with adults.

Mothers have the opportunity to supervise and observe these activities, assisted by the school director, Ella Rechnitzer, by participating one morning a week.

Tuition is $10 a month for a three day week and $12 for a five day week with the school's hours being from 9 to 11:45 a. m. daily.

Members are not only from the Pacifica area but also from Westlake, St. Francis Heights and Pacific Heights. Car pools are organized and baby sitting can be arranged with participating mothers.

All parents are invited to meet the school faculty of the Bay Area's most modern school.

Architect Mario J. Ciampi, or his associate, Paul Reiter, will be on the agenda to explain the design of the school.

What would San Francisco do with a World Series? That seems to be the question which is prominent in most areas at this moment. The rejuvenated San Francisco Giants, who have so oft disappointed the hometown supporters, have suddenly loomed back into the pennant picture.

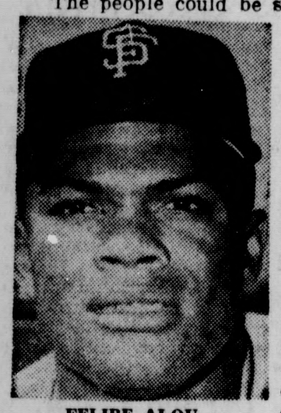
If the Giants do win the elusive National League pennant by some strange quirk of fate, how will the San Francisco afficiando react?

This seems to be the predominate mystery hanging over the picturesque and lively city by the Golden Gate.

Unfortunately, due to the miserable showing of SF teams in the past — and this includes all sports — the reactions to a pennant victory cast on the San Francisco fans are purely speculative.

Scientists can compile all of the statistics and data that they want to, but the reaction is unpredictable.

The people could be so stunned that they could submerge into a state of shock. Everybody in the San Francisco area could be staggering around the streets for days with blank looks on their faces.



FELIPE ALOU
. . . Lieutenant Governor

You can be sure that Uncle Horace hopes that this doesn't happen. The Giants could be playing the Yankees at Candlestick Park before an empty house and this wouldn't set too good with the players or management — who expect to make money off of such a venture as the world series.

Then again, the shock of the World Series being played in San Francisco could throw the fans into such a frenzy that they might never quit celebrating. But this wouldn't be too good, either. The bartenders would like it, but San Francisco's alcoholic rate would zoom to astronomical heights — something which it is now approaching without a pennant.

And, again, Big Daddy Stoneham and his players wouldn't like this because everybody would be so drunk that they would forget to show up at the ball games.

Another frightening aspect of a pennant victory could be the political implications precipitated by the victory.

San Francisco people might go so far as to switch their loyalty from George Christopher for Lieutenant Governor, to Felipe Alou. And the same people, acting as a frenzied mob, could descend upon the voting machines November 6 and vote in Jack Sanford or Willie Mays instead of Pat Brown or Richard Nixon.

And to carry this idea one step further, the San Francisco people, who have been accused of chauvanism, could go completely daffy and seceed from the Nation. With everybody falling deeply in love with themselves and the Giants, they could completely sever all connections with the outside world. Tony Bennet could sing the San Francisco National Anthem and Louis Lurie could be governor.

But this wouldn't set too well with Stoneham and the Giants, either, because they would have to apply for visas to play in New York. And you know how hard it is to swing a bat with diphtheria, scarelt fever, bubonic plague, dysentery and typhoid shots in the arm.

So maybe the Giants should take another look at the score before they start this final pennant drive. They may do something that they could be sorry for.

ON THE SIDELINES . . . One of the proudest men in Daly City is Joe Sarto, owner of the Villa Sanitarium. Sarto, a 32-year resident of Daly City, is the main sponsor of the Sarto-SF Police American Legion baseball team which recently won the state finals and barely lost in the nationals.

The main reason that Sarto is so proud is that he has been working with a majority of the boys for more than four years and some of them even longer. It is the first time in recent history that a Legion title has gone to San Francisco.

Two of the youths on the team prepped here in Daly City. They are Terry Christman and George Claus, the former being from Westmoor and the latter from Jeff.

One of Sarto's earlier baseball developments is Detroit's Don Mossi. Who knows, maybe one of these youths will reach the heights which Mossi did — because of Joe Sarto.

Westmoor's champion pole vaulter, Dennis Chase, has returned to the Bay Area to enter College of San Mateo after a summer of work at the Seattle World's Fair.

And out for football at CSM are Westmoor's Steve Funai and Jeff's Sammy Ennon — both prep stars of 1961.

BYA Aids Youth Of Daly City Area

By Garry Niver

The smell of autumn permeates the brisk air, signifying that football season is upon us once again.

The young boy can't wait to get home from school, slip into his tennies and hustle off to the nearest vacant lot.

The contagious contact sport seems to affect youths of all ages. For the fortunate high school lad there are organized teams and leagues to play on.

But what about the youngster between the ages of 10 and 14? Usually his organized grid aspirations must be put aside until he reaches high school.

However, that is not the case in Daly City. The Daly City BYA provides youths of the area with organized sports.

Few people in Daly City are cognizant of what BYA stands for. The abbreviation has been around for eight years, appearing on the young lads' baseball uniforms, football jerseys and basketball togs.

BYA stands for Better Youth Association, an organization which had its inception in Broadmoor in 1954.

The organization, which gets its funds from sponsors and fund-raising drives, is currently in the midst of organizing its youth football program.

The BYA has more than enough boys, has enough sponsors, but is lacking in coaches to run the teams. Athletic director George Brenk has issued a plea to local fathers who are interested in the youth of the area to call him at PL 6-8321.

"The purpose of the BYA is to create and further competitive athletics for as many boys in the Daly City-Colma area as possible," said Brenk.

The various leagues supported and organized by BYA are run in conjunction with the Daly City Recreation Department.

The size of this year's touch football program will depend upon how many coaches the organization can get.

The BYA started out in 1954 with one baseball team. Today they direct and sponsor eight baseball teams, plus the basketball and football program.

The founders of the organization were Bob Goodwin, Broadmoor Police Chief, Ray Savage, Randy Hix, Bud Christman, Art Dougherty, Bob Johnson, Everett Heick, and the late Eddie Hyndman and Ross Hilton.

Some of the youths who have come up through the BYA ranks are Terry Christman, who recently played in the National All-Star game in New York City, Tommy McHugh, currently with the LA Dodger chain, Jim Heick, Art Dennis, Bill Dougherty, Bill Hix and Bill Reynolds.

President of the BYA is Rocky Kubowitz. Other officers are Sam Mannina, vice president; Tony Conteeras, vice president; Ernie Kerger, tresurer; and Brenk, Athletic director.

Some of the top sponsores for BYA are Art Colvin Realty, Harrision Realty, Aero Motors, Bender Roofing, Skyline Plaza Merchants, Relish Bakery and Westlake Merchants.

The total operating budget for the state chartered BYA is set at $2000 for this year. Out of this money comes equipment, uniforms, baseballs and umpires.

The BYA continues to expand and meet the growing needs of Daly City. With more adult participation the organization can fulfill all of the athletic needs of the youths of this area.

TOM TESHARA, president of the "Pee Wee" Training League, holds perpetual trophy which this year will be inscribed with co-winners' names National Trophy and Winston Manor Merchants. The league, in its third year of operation, has included San Francisco and San Bruno in previous years.

SSF Pee Wee Loop Ends Action

The weatherman cooperated nicely and provided the South San Francisco Pee Wee Seniors with a beautiful day at Orange Park last Sunday for their finale. A near-capacity crowd filled the stands and stayed for the better part of the day.

The first game, beginning at 11:30, found the National League S.F. Giants vs. the American League Yankees. Game was tied 11-11 going into the eighth inning, when the Giants scored seven times to prevail, 18-13. The Yankees rallied for two more in their half of the eighth but still fell short.

For the Giants, Steve Fehman was the star at the plate, knocking out three doubles and three singles. Mike Hansen slugged four hits, while Mike Stephens collected three blows. On defense, Bob Buerger, shortstop, prevented many an infield hit and John Althoff also hustled. The game saw a fine double play by Jon Cosbie, first base, who fielded a ground ball, tagged first and threw to catcher Steve Teshara, who tagged out the sliding runner from third base.

Hitting well for the Yanks were Lynn Honey with four and Paul Marty and John Dunn each collected three. Defensive standouts were Tom Drake, second base; Ken Pucci, third base; Gary Stagnaro, catcher, and Ron Ghilardi.

The second game, featuring the Minnesota Twins and the Cincinnati Reds, found the Twins winning, 4-0. Ted De Pucci and Dennis Campredon led the Twins in the hitting department with three hits apiece. Defensive play was the feature of the game, as Gary Commick, shortstop; Dick Young, first base; Tony Sinicropi, second base, and Bill Shreve combined to keep the Reds scoreless.

Jim McTiernan collected four hits, but his teammates were unable to bring him around, although Mike Peterson and Steve Venters had two hits apiece. Hustling on defense were Frank Anderson, shortstop; Jeff Bennett, first base; Matt Murphy, center field, and John Olson for the Reds.

In the final game, the Angels spilled the Dodgers, 8-7. The game was tied several times during the nine innings.

Rich Rago scored three of the runs while Rick Amador collected three hits and Chris Callero and Armando Realyvasquez each bagged two hits. Joe Majka, Mike Davis and Dick Unsin combined to play very well defensively.

Several Dodgers banged out two hits apiece, including Tom Caselli, John Lucia; John Dugan got a double and two singles, and Pete DiCorti had three singles. Good defensive play on the infield starred Don Solomon and Joe McDonald. Fred Puello hustled in left field.

Sammy Hale To Put National Title On Line At Half Moon

The outstanding entry at the meet scheduled this Satuday night, September 15, at Half Moon Bay drag strip will be South San Francisco's Sammy Hale, driving the Champion Speed Shop Special. Hale, holder of the national No. 2 Mr. Eliminator title, has been challenged by the Hylton, Crossley & Williams team from Bakersfield to defend this title at his home strip.

Hale, who has never been defeated at Half Moon Bay, will pit his super-charged Chevrolet, the world's fastest and quickest Chevrolet (speeds at 181 mph, e.t.'s 8.26 seconds), against the Hylton, Crossley & William Special, a supercharged Chrysler with Jack Williams at the wheel. Williams has attained speeds of 187 mph with e.t.'s of 8.26 seconds.

Saturday night will be the first time for these two dragsters to be matched and the southern California challenger is the biggest threat Hale has had to face in defense of his nation No. 2 Mr. Eliminator title since he acquired this itle earlier this year.

A total of $2,000 will be awarded to those who make the winner's circle.

In addition to Saturday's main event, all of northern California's top dragsters will be in attendance plus a full schedule of stock and superstock entries. The event is sanctioned by the National Hot Rod Association.

Gates open at 2 p. m., eliminations start at 8:30 p. m. Ample parking facilities are available.

PAL Tigers Win Jr. World Series

The Daly City PAL Tigers, erupting for seven big runs in the fifth inning, bested the Balboa PAL nine, 13-8, for the San Francisco recreation department's Junior Baseball World Series championship.

The Tigers augmented their attack with 13 hits, while the locals limited the Balboa nine to five hits.

Reggie Baumgardner, Ron Smith, Nick Kosturos, Jim Davis and DeWayne Morris each belted out two hits for the visitors.

Third baseman Bill Simotas of the Balbo team led the hitters of the day with four hits in four trips to the plate.

In the Class B division, Mrs. Jack Stockton shot a blazing net 70 to top the field. Mrs. William Jeffers was next with a 79.

It's SPARE TIME at Westlake Bowl

By JIM GREALISH

With the start of league play last Tuesday night, two members of the Petersen Point Singles League became the first members of the newly formed Westlake 600 Club. Jim Pistolesi, with the help of a 255 game, posted a 642 series while Frank Peterson's 234 game helped him to shoot a 625 series. Wednesday night found six members of the 915 All-Star League join the club on opening night as Don Broll posted a 643, Bob Johnson 636, Larry Oppenheim 639, Henry Sullivan 605 and John Morales and Suds Bier both had 604.

Joe Nessinger missed the six hundred mark by three pins in the Westlake Classic League as he shot a 215 game and 595 series.

Wednesday morning was rather quiet at Westlake until 9:48 a.m. at which time Donna Ravetti brought daughter Denise, age three and one-half years into the nursery to become the 40,000 child to be place there since the opening less than four years ago. Donna, who represented Westlake Bowl on the Tic Tac Bowl television show last year, carries a 150 average in the St. Thomas More Wednesday morning league and has been bowling for two years. Husband Dan is an occasional bowler and a regular golfer. Other children are Cleo ten years of age and Dale seven. Donna will receive a Brunswick ball and bag while Denise will receive a savings bond.

As the Aid Retarded Children Tournament entered the final weeks, Bonnie Birkett and Hersch Laughlin held the lead in their respective divisions. Bonnie's 630 series placed her five pins ahead of Miss Callan while Gloria Anderson held third place with 615. Hersch also holds his lead by five pins over Bert Warto while Ralph Ostergren is in third place with 721. The tournament closes at midnight September 16.

Best wishes for a speedy recovery to Mrs. Sam Steinberg who is temporarily confined to the hospital. Not only is she a fine bowler but also a loyal rooter for the B'nai B'rith League.

Bonnie Birkett, who led the Westlake team to the championship in the Metro Mixed Travel League journeyed to Mission Bowl last Sunday to compete in the Aid Retarded Children Tournament and proceeded to shoot the best series of her career. Starting with a 212 first game, she added ten pins for a 222 second game then closed with a 190 final game for a 624 series. With her 90 pin handicap, she took the lead in the ladies' division by a country mile with a 714 total.

Saturday night was party night at Westlake for Morgan Taylor and a group of eleven friends who bowled "just for fun."

The Country Club League started with a bang last Tuesday—a total of 24 teams participating to become the largest league in Westlake history. Ray Spina had no opening night jitters as he led the 120 bowlers with a 216 game and 586 series.

Les Reams became the new King of the Hill in the Friday Jackpot Sweepers as he shot a 656 series to lead the field, then defeated Bill Greer in the Rolloff five strikes to three. Mingo Bacciocco won a Las Vegas Vacation for two with his seven consecutive strikes.

John McClelland missed becoming a member of the 600 Club by only three pins as he shot a 239 game and 597 series on the opening night of the Westlake Minors.

The American Junior Bowling Congress "Rejects" now command a little more respect from their "little brothers" as they defeated the Westlakers 900 team 30.41 to 26.41 in a Petersen Point match last Sunday night. Fred Neubert led both teams with a 587 series on a high game of 217.

Hardtops To Go At Alviso Track

Double points will be awarded in Friday night's doubleheader races at Alviso Speedway with main events for both the hardtops and the claiming stock cars boosted to 30 laps for the evening. Timing will start at 7:30 p. m.

Point leaders in both divisions protected their standings in last week's racing as Jack Epperson of Milpitas won the hardtop feature and Jim Clennan of Santa Clara repeated as winner of the claiming stock main.

Epperson boosted his point lead over Whitey White of San Jose in the Western Auto Racing standings. Paul Orr of San Jose, with his second place finish, moved into third place in the point chase.

NASCAR claiming stock point leader is Ron McMillan of Pacifica, who was third behind Clennan last week in the feature race, retaining the point leadership by only a few points. Dick Larimore of San Jose, second finisher, is seventh in points.

Special attraction last week was the Powder Puff Derby which attracted 25 women drivers and was raced in two heats. Winners were Kathy Dodge of Hayward, who has won honors at other tracks in past years, and Dolores Garcia, also of Hayward, a newcomer.

Two women drivers suffered minor injuries when their cars slammed into the crash wall in different races. Fray Owen, wife of the popular San Jose driver, Cowboy Bud Owen, was badly shaken up and was treated by the track physician. Ida Milliron of Hayward suffered shock and a possible neck injury and was taken to the hospital for a checkup.

With the racing season at Alviso Speedway coming to a close shortly, track officials announced that the destruction derby which will be an added feature on September 21 will have prize money of $100 to the winner, $50 for second. Regular NASCAR rules will apply, with referee decisions to be final.

HIGH POINT!—The very highest point of a football season just beginning has already been reached by this youngster from Hanna Boys' Center as he is hoisted high on the broad shoulders of two San Francisco 49ers. Top rookie linebacker Ed Pine of Reno, left, and Halfback Dale Messer of Fresno, recently joined other 49ers in entertaining boys from the western "boys' town" near Sonoma.

Funai, Ennon Head List Of CSM's Notable Frosh Stars

With most positions still up for grabs, College of San Mateo week of drills in preparation for their opening game at Stockton on September 14.

First stringers Rick Norman, quarterback, and Clarence Hamal, halfback, of the 1961 squad return for another season in the backfield — bringing with them such 1961 laurels as CSM most improved player and All-Big Eight Conference, respectively.

Norman has competition for his job from former Mills flinger Gene Scattini, a second team all-Peninsula League choice in 1961. Steve Funai, who received the same laurels at Westmoor last year, and William Schilz a sophomore from Carlmont, also seek the signal calling spot.

Willie Holman, five-foot-five veteran, who came on late last season to score two touchdowns in the last league contest, and newcomer Sam Ennon from Jefferson seek to uncork all-American nominee Hamel from his left halfback slot. All-State halfback Moe Barreras from Albuquerque, N. M., adds spice to the battle.

All Peninsula League halfback Ron Witschy of South San Francisco High School is slated mainly for defensive work along with returning defensive starter Fred Oppazzo.

Former halfback Oppezzo may see offensive work at fullback. Sprinter Claude McMillan, starting halfback in 1961 until injured, is slated for fullback chores, too.

Peninsula speed king Steve Firense from Serra may also carry fullback duties although he's currently a flankerback candidate. Leading in the flanker spotlight are two other track flashes, Charlie Haysbert from San Mateo and Walter Adkins of Menlo-Atherton.

Leggettes—8 Years Of Training By The Leggs

By GARRY NIVER

The six young girls glided lithely across the ice, performing their feats as a routine, matter-of-fact endeavor. The flashing silver skates gritted into the ice as the six pairs of legs pivoted in unison, sending tiny flakes of ice into the cool space.

The scene of activity was not the Shipstads and Johnson Ice Follies, though it very well could have been, but an ice rink on San Francisco's Ocean avenue.

Over on the sidelines giving the girls encouragement were Phyliss and Harris Legg, owners of the rink — the Legg School for Ice Skating at 1951 Ocean avenue.

The girls out on the ice performed the act gracefully and expertly — displaying years of teaching and practice.

It was exactly eight years ago this year — in 1954 — that Phyliss and Harris Legg quit the Shipstad and Johnson Ice Follies as stars of the show and opened up their ice-skating school.

And the six teenagers out on the ice were the first students of the Leggs. Today, five of the girls—Marijane Monaghan, Judy Monaghan, Toni Nuno, Carol Grimstad, Jacqueline Lucas — the exception is Carol Durkin, all belong to a precision ice-skating group known as the Leggettes.

The Leggettes, which number 20, appear at the Cow Palace on the weekends when the San Francisco Seals professional hockey team is playing at home. The girls perform their routines at the half-times of the games.

The Leggettes have also performed in shows at Squaw Valley and on television.

The Leggettes, originated by Phyliss and Harris, are now taught by Terry Derfield and Patti Crandell — both former Shipstad and Johnson Ice Follies stars, though Phyliss and Harris still assist with the choreography.

The precision group currently has eight different routines with eight different costumes, all made by the mothers of the girls. The routines include a sailor number, jazz number, a collegiate number, Scotch number, military number, an Irish number, Christmas number, a ballet and the new Spanish number.

The Leggs are proud of their girls and of other students who have left the ranks after learning the art of ice skating from the Leggs. To date, 12 of the girls have "graduated" to the world-famed Shipstad and Johnson Ice Follie show.

Phyliss and Harris Legg met in the Shipstad and Johnson Ice Follies, and after 17 years of starring for the ice troupe, opened their rink in San Francisco.

Today the Leggs have spread their operations to include a beautiful glass enclosed ice-skating studio rink at the Jack Tarr Hotel, with both rinks operating on a seven-day-per-week schedule.

The ice school employs five teachers, Terry Derfield, Patti Crandall, Jackie Riley, John Franks and Sandy Angel, who aid in instructing 11 high schools, City College of San Francisco, YWCA groups, including two classes from the Westlake YWCA, and numerous groups throughout the Bay Area.

The ice-skating rinks are open from 10 a. m. until 9:30 p. m., seven days a week. Due to the tremendous popularity of the sport, most of the time the rinks are tied up with lessons and classes.

People wishing to learn the art of ice skating taught by the Leggs and their talented staff may sign up at either location, and they will be placed in an ice-skating class.

The rink at Ocean avenue does have recreational skating every Friday evening and on holidays. The Jack Tar rink has recreational skating every night from 7 to 9:30 o'clock.

The Leggs tutor youngsters from three years of age and up.

The ice rinks are also available for birthday parties, Scouts, church groups and fraternal organizations at special rates.

The rinks also offer a complete line of skating equipment and costumes.

The six young girls have now completed their practice and head off the ice. Phyliss Legg beams proudly at the girls and the girls smile proudly back—both complimenting each other for the tradition in ice established in the City by the Golden Gate.

There's a common belief among aspiring baseball players today that they have to be a big man in order to become a professional.

But it's a lot of hogwash. I only have to point to the San Francisco Giants for proof that small men can play this game. The Giants have eight "little" fellas who play an integral part in the success of the team.

With the exception of Orlando Cepeda, the Giants infield is made up of banty roosters who stand no taller than 5-10 and weigh no more than 170 pounds. These players are third baseman Jimmy Davenport, shortstop Jose Pagan, second baseman Chuck Hiller and utility man Ernie Bowman. Then there is outfielder Matty Alou, who can generate power at the plate like Davenport and Pagan.

Three other Giants who are small in stature are pitchers Billy O'Dell, Billy Pierce and Stu Miller.

Most of the other National League teams have bantams too. Two dandies are shortstops Maury Wills (LA) and Chico Cardenas (Redlegs).

Major league scouts are responsible for starting the myth that baseball's a big man's game. That's because scouts are always trying to sign the big guy. But they still can't pass up talent, regardless to the package that it's wrapped up in.

Then, too, there's no pants size meassuring determination.

Eddie Fisher (the singer, not the pitcher) belts out a great tune entitled "You've Gotta Have Heart," and I think about that song everytime I think about Robin Roberts and Joe Nuxhall.

These two pitchers had the immeasureable determination not to quit on themselves, after everybody else had.

Roberts was cut loose by the Phillies, where he won fame for many seasons. Nobody in the National League picked him up, so he asked for a tryout with the Yanks. He got it, and that's about all. New York sent him on his way. Robin then swallowed his pride a little bid more and asked to throw batting practice for Baltimore Orioles. The rest is history.

Robin's been a tall tower of power on the Oriole staff, and the courageous righthander has already beaten the Yanks twice this season.

Meanwhile, Joe Nuxhall was looking for a job 18 long years after the Cincinnati Redlegs introduced him as the youngest player in major league history. He was 15 when he made his debut against the Cards. He was 33 when they nearly buried him as a major league pitcher.

Big Joe spent the first part of spring in a nightmare. He had made three quick visits which took him to Kansas City, to Baltimore then to the Angels. Finally he was declared a free agent, which is a sophisticated term meaning a guy looking for a job.

Nuxhall found himself in the same boat as Roberts. He had to ask for a paddle, and he got one from the very team that signed him as a boy. The Redlegs.

Cincy shipped him to San Diego, where they found out in a hurry that he was no minor leaguer.

It was a pleasure indeed to see Nuxhall win his first four games this season in the National League. The "washed up" veteran now owns one of the best ERA's in the circuit.

"You've Gotta Have Heart," is quite a tune. And Roberts and Nuxhall can whistle it in the dressing room anytime.

Jack Sanford, first Giant this year to enter the "20 Wins Club" says that he's a better pitcher this year than when he won 19 with Philly. "I just reared back and threw at Philadelphia," Jack comments. "Now I'm moving the ball around the way I want to" . . . Cincinnati Inquirer sports editor Lou Smith is a radical among visiting sportswriters. He loves Candlestick Park, the wind and the fog and everything about the city. "I want to move here when I retire," says Smith . . . Another note in regard to Cincinnati: The Redlegs have less than a .500 percent average against left-handed pitching this year, which is probably why Billy Pierce and Billy O'Dell registered wins against Cincy in late August.

The first foul ball in Candlestick Park history to sail through an open window in the press box occurred on Aug. 31. The ball nearly ripped Jack Hanley's typewriter ribbon. The whole press corps proved to be a cowardly lot. Nearly every man covered his head and ducked under the counter.

CSM Has Longest Win Streak Of California JCs

College of San Mateo currently boasts the longest win streak among California's 70 junior colleges (nine games, including a 6-0 win over Hancock in the Prune Bowl in 1961) and has not lost a league game since early 1959 (to Contra Costa). This year CSM enters competition in the new all Bay Area Golden Gate Conference.

San Mateo opens its 1962 season at Stockton this Friday night, September 14, at Stockton. Game time is 8 o'clock.

This will be the 19th game in the series between the two schools, former Big Eight rivals, with the Golden Horseshoe trophy at stake.

The trophy, initiated in 1956, was won by Stockton the first three years but has been retained by CSM the past three seasons. In the overall series, Stockton leads, 10-6, with two ties.

Mt. St. Joseph's Holds Benefit Golf Tourney

Two hundred golfers are expected to participate in a one-day tournament Monday, October 22, at Harding Park for the benefit of Mount St. Joseph's Home for Girls in San Francisco.

Entries have already been received from any of the more active amateurs in the Bay Area, according to Ted White, general chairman. Starting times will be available throughout the day on a first request basis, with John M. Maugham in charge.

Prizes will be awarded for gross, net, Callaway and a hole-in-one contest. The honors will be presented that evening at a dinner at Joe Orengo's Resttaurant at Lakeshore Plaza.

Proceeds of the tournament will be devoted to the recreation fund at the Mount to assist 130 orphaned and dependent girls who are guests at the home. Located at 1700 Newhall in the Bayview section, Mount St. Joseph's has aided needy youngsters for more than 111 years.

James A. Scatena is co-chairman of the committee. Interested golfers may obtain further information from White by calling EX 2-3604 or Scatena at JU 6-2324.

South City Man Entered In Championship Boat Races

Defending overall champion Rudy Ramos of Gardena heads up a list of 14 drivers exempt from qualifying for the $15,000 Salton City 500 mile boat race, November 9-11.

The list, released this week, consists of the top money winners from last year's 500 mile event.

Second through fifth behind Ramos, each getting a berth exempting them from the unlimited board qualifying heats of November 9, are Jim Hurtibise of Indianapolis 500 fame, Lennox; Bill Cornelious, Downey; Lou Brummett, Pasadena, and John Sofilos of South San Francisco.

Exemptions in the unlimited twin engine outboard classes go to Bert Watts and Bob Kies, both of Los Aangeles; Della Carlile of Bellflower, Bobby Massey of Rosemead and John Peterson of Grand Junction, Colo.

Dr. Mark Stagg of Burbank headed the unlimited single engine outboard crew, with Don Marshall of Phoenix, Rolland McGowan of Oxnard and Andy Castro of Los Angeles following in that order.

CSM Frosh Stars

Larry Schilbe, a second team all-Big Eight choice in '61 returns to his left end spot. He led the Bulldogs in both receiving and interceptions last season.

Former all-county end Mark Moritz, a 1961 CSM veteran, also returns along with punter Mike McGriff. McGriff, Westmoor's Mike Kearney, and Joseph Dillon of Hillsdale all seek the right end spot.

Heading up the CSM beef trust on the line is the Peninsula League's shot put record helder Walt Wenger, a 6-2, 270 pound tackle, who seeks the left tackle slot along with Bob McElheny and Rich Cisneros. McElheny (6-1, 230) was an all-Peninsula League choice at Burlingame in '61 while Cisneros (5-11, 196) took second team honors as a guard in South San Francisco.

Pete Nepota (6-4, 255) will return to his right tackle post if he can shake ulcer problems, while all-county choice Frank Kagarakis (6-2, 220) from South San Francisco is also available.

Guard prospects include converted frosh tackles Tom Nolan and Sam Moore, veteran Wayne Cappa and Donnie Lord, and other newcomers Chester Prince and Robert Zmak.

Nolan (6-0, 225) was all-North Coast for Serra's 1961 champions and was touted as a northern California "player-of-the week." Moore received all-Peninsula League laurels.

CSM Evening College Offers Academic Credit Art Courses

Three of the 24 courses in the arts being offered by the Evening College of the College of San Mateo this fall will carry academic credit toward college degrees, according to an announcement by Evening College authorities.

Meeting one evening a week for four hours, the courses will combine lectures on historical and theoretical background with the more unusual practical application in the studio for two lower division units.

Basic drawing (Art 13a), scheduled for Monday evenings at the Coyote Point campus, will cover discussions of the materials and techniques of art and the depiction of various forms both simple and complex. Instructor for the course will be Robert K. Gronendyke, who holds the B.A. and M.A. degrees in art from Long Beach State College and has taught at the Cubberly Adult School, Palo Alto, and at East Montana College, Billings.

Fundamentals of Painting (Art 6b), also being held on Monday evenings at Coyote Point, covers oil painting styles and materials, the psychology of color, considerations of two and three-dimensional placement of color form, as well as a number of painting assignments, chiefly indoors. The course will be taught by Mrs. Joan Kacere, a B.F.A. from the University of Iowa who has taught art at both Iowa State Teachers College and at the Half Moon Bay High School, and has done graduate work in this field at San Francisco and San Jose State Colleges and at the University of California.

Beginning ceramics (Art 67a) will meet on Tuesdays in the Capuchino High School art room. Lectures and studio hours will be divided among problems in working with clay, basic design fundamentals, and techniques of slab and coil work and glazes. Stanley G. Grosse, Millbrae, who was trained at Glendale College and the California College of Arts and Crafts, will conduct the course.

Registration for these courses takes place at the first class meeting as scheduled. The usual $2.00 Evening College registration fee applies, as well as, in the case of ceramics and drawing, a small additional charge for supplies.

Questions about these and other art courses offered this fall will be answered at the Evening College office on Coyote Point or by telephone to DI 2-1421.

EXPECTANT MOTHER TALKS ARE SLATED

Two new series of eight group discussion meetings for expectant mothers and fathers will be held by the Department of Public Health, Dr. Ellis D. Sox, director, announced this week.

"Each meeting will be devoted to discussions based on parents' questions regarding pregnancy, labor and delivery and care of the new-born baby.

"A public health nurse will guide the discussion, and participation by the members of the group will be an essential feature of each meeting," Dr. Sox said.

The first series of discussion meetings will be held at the Marina-Richmond Health Center, 2303 Greenwich street in San Francisco, on Monday, October 1, from 10 to 11:30 a. m.

The discussions will be guided by Miss Catherine Sheckler. For those who find the alternate time and location more convenient, a second series of discussion meetings will be held at the Sunset Health Center, 1900 41st avenue, beginning on Wednesday, October 3, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. These discussions will be guided by Mrs. Dorothy Bracchi.

Any expectant parent may attend these sessions, but enrollment will be limited to 12 members in either series, and registrations will be accepted in the order of application. Because of the limited enrollment, the health director urges those wishing to attend to pre-register before the opening session.

Registration may be made by calling the San Francisco Health Department, UN 1-4701, extension 73, any week day between 9 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. Expectant mothers may wish to discuss attending these classes with their physicians, many of whom refer their patients.

AN ENTHUSED CROWD of visitors sample the delicacies at the West Portal Merchants' Hospitality Buffet in the Garden Court of the Chuck Wagon Restaurant last week.

Hospitality Buffet On West Portal Huge Success

The beautiful garden court on West Portal avenue hummed with anticipation from the large group of people at the hospitality buffet last Thursday and Friday.

This annual event is sponsored by the member merchants and businessmen of the West Portal Avenue Association. It is their way of expressing appreciation for the patronage of their valued customers. A gaily ringing bell, hastily borrowed from Tuggey Hardware, signaled the opening of the buffet luncheon on Thursday.

Almost immediately, people started arriving to sample the delicious food and converse with their friends on the avenue. The buffet table provided an ample supply of delicious foods, including hot meat balls, sandwich meats, cheeses, rye bread, and other trimmings, along with hot coffee. All of the food was donated by the member grocery stores and delicatessens on the avenue. Wherever you see the association sign posted in one of these stores, you know this merchant is actively engaged in trying to please his customers, and has thanked them for their business.

The Chuck Wagon's facilities were used for warming and serving the food. The hospitable doors of this fine restaurant were open wide so that the guests outside could enjoy the relaxing music which is a standard feature of the Chuck Wagon. Ozzie Buoncristiani, Harvey Andersen and Dorothy DePaolo kept the food on the table and the coffee hot. The attendance was far better this year than in previous ones, and the avenue people were delighted to see and welcome so many of their friends and customers. The man with the camera was also present, recording memories of the happy faces of people having a good time. Free enlargements of these pictures will be available among the member stores on West Portal for those who can spot their own picture. Once again, these enlargements are provided by the merchant in whose store you find your picture. The West Portal people are continually doing these things to make shopping happier for their customers. These pleasant diversifications make shopping on West Portal a little different and more pleasant.

Two dozen prizes were given away each day to lucky holders of the free tickets given by member merchants to their customers. The prizes were all donated by the shops and stores on West Portal. Many people were delighted with the splendid, useful gifts they received. Among the prizes were throw rugs, hot and cold drink tumblers, cosmetics, gift certificates, household articles, and certificates for other goods and services—all free to the West Portal avenue customers. Nancy Peterson, from the Toy Village; Jack MacDonald and Len Powers were busily posting winning numbers for the hopeful winners. The excitement mounted every time someone called, "here, here—I have a winner!" Several of the lucky winners personally approached the merchants who donated their prize and thanked them for the free gift. The prizes covered a great variety of uses as a result of the wide range of goods and services available on West Portal avenue. The avenue is probably one of the biggest shopping centers of its kind in the area in relation to the variety of consumer goods and services available.

The following list shows the people who donated prizes for the buffet drawings. These are among the merchants who have a vital interest in their customers. All of the member merchants contribute in some way, so this is only a partial list of active people on the avenue. The donors are: Leonard's Hair Stylists, Don's Beauty House, Dake's, W. P. Fuller Co., Savano Luggage, Daylite Market (grocery, meat, and poultry and fish departments), Marshall's Pharmacy, Carpets from McKown, Tip Top Shoe Service, So-Rite Dress Forms, Steve's Donut Shop, O'Dee Ann's, Lido Delicatessen, West Portal Market, Tuggey Hardware, Courtings, Sugar and Spice, Papenhausen Hardware, West Portal Chicken Parts, West Portal Radio, Fantasia, Toy Village, Crown Pet Sales, Siskin's Thrift Drugs, Portalwood Pharmacy, Family Liquors, Foster's, and Bill's Delicatessen.

TV and RADIO

Bright kleig linghts on, cameras rolling into place, floor crews ready—a feeling of expectancy and fun as the Tennessee Ernie Ford show takes to the air! In the audience last week were forty members of the Westlake Senior Citizens Group who visited KGO's studios to watch the show.

The program premiered the first of April over the ABC network and has been rollicking along at a merry clip ever since. The only daytime (weekdays, 11 a.m.) network show to originate in San Francisco, the program has built up a loyal and enthusiastic audience throughout the country and almost 20,000 bay area residents and tourists have been to KGO's studios to watch the show.

The show's star, "Ole Ern" as he is affectionately known to fans and friends alike is certainly one of the nation's most popular and talented entertainers. Besides possessing a fine voice he has a genuine warm personality that is felt both by the studio audience and his many viewers. Backed by a talented cast and "live" orchestra the program is one of the bright spots on daytime television.

If you would like to attend the program or perhaps your organization would like to go as a group (the studio has a capacity of 160) write Ernie Ford Tickets, KGO-TV, San Francisco approximately three weeks ahead of the time you wish to attend (no children under 12 are permitted and high school students must be accompanied by an adult).

Do plan to go—we know you'll enjoy the show and it is quite an experience to get a peek at what goes on behind the scenes of a television program.

King Tut's Treasures At Legion Of Honor

Royal treasures from archaeology's most spectacular find—the 3,000-year-old tomb of King Tutankhamun—will be exhibited at the California Palace of the Legion of Honor from September 15 to October 14. The exhibit is sponsored by the Patrons of Art and Music, the museum's auxiliary.

The treasures assembled for this exhibit have never before been displayed outside of Egypt. Now, through the courtesy of the Egyptian government, the exhibit is touring American museums in connection with the international effort to save a number of ancient Nubian monuments which are threatened with being completely and permanently covered by waters of the Nile on completion of the Aswan Dam.

34 Pieces

The exhibit will consist of 34 pieces, 31 from the tomb of King Tutankhamun (popularly known as King Tut), and three from the tombs of other pharaohs. Also on display through the generous loan of President and Mrs. Kennedy, will be a stone statue from the Egyptian Old Kingdom, about 2,500 B.C. This beautiful statue was presented to Mrs. Kennedy by the United Arab Republic at the opening of the exhibition in Washington and, at her request, is included among the pieces sent on tour.

Tutankhamun was king of Egypt about 1350 B.C. Although little is known of the young pharaoh's personal life, his reign had considerable historical significance. He is believed to be the last descendant of the 18th Dynasty which had ruled Egypt during the 200 years of its Golden Age.

King Tutankhamun's tomb in the famous Valley of the Kings was discovered virtually intact by Lord Carnarvon and Howard Carter in 1922. From the more than 2,000 magnificent objects found in the tomb, the 31 smaller pieces selected for the traveling exhibit are of particular interest because of their close association with the mummified body of the king.

Gold Dagger

Among them are an embossed gold dagger and sheath found with the body; jewelry, amulets, and collars of gold and faience worn by the mummy; a richly decorated miniature coffin of gold—inlaid with carnelian and lapis lazuli—which held the ruler's internal organs; and several statuettes of cedar, sandstone, and alabaster in the likeness of the mummified king.

Also on display with the tomb treasures will be large photographs showing panoramic views of the Nubian monuments and temples on the banks of the Nile, particularly the great rock-cut temple at Abu Simbel with its colossal statues of Ramses II and his queen, Nefertari. Under the auspices of UNESCO, a number of countries, including the United States, are cooperating in an international effort to save these ancient monuments from being inundated and destroyed by the waters of the Nile after scheduled completion of the Aswan Dam in the late 1960's.

The exhibit of treasures from the tomb of King Tutankhamun was organized by the American Association of Museums with the cooperation of the Ministry of Culture of the United Arab Republic and the Cairo Museum, where the objects are usually on display. The exhibition is being circulated in this country this year and next by the Traveling Exhibition Service of the Smithsonian Institution. In San Francisco, the exhibit will be shown only at the California Palace of the Legion of Honor.

Vallemar Teacher Heads Committee

Sanger's job will be to stimulate teacher interest in attending this professional workshop at the local level in addition to having a primary county-wide committee responsibility.

A trip on any of the local freeways these days, say from Daly City to San Francsico or from San Francisco to South City, and one gets the impression that our main enemy isn't Communism but ourselves.

Once you enter one of the winding access-ramps to the great, gray concrete highways, you are on a one-way trip to hell.

True, the freeways expedite the traffic, but they also expedite the people—to their graves, that is. Once on the freeway, one gains a sense of claustrophobia as the big semi-trucks bear down from all directions, choking you with their voluminous black clouds of exhaust fumes.

Still dizzy from the carbon monoxide, you are next harassed by the irritating high-pitched din of the sports car. The mosquito-like noise bites at the nape of your skull and makes its way up into the cranium.

It is at this stage in the game that you begin to grip the wheel until the knuckles turn a deathly white. A cold sweat breaks out on the forehead and the eyeballs swivel in their sockets.

The pace begins to strengthen and the newer and more powerful Detroit fillies begin pushing you aside—almost oblivious to your existence. You try to keep pace, but your car reacts like a plough horse in a thoroughbred race.

The big cars move up between autos, cutting in front, and the squealing, smoking tires add further to your nervous affliction.

Next come the big express buses with their deep, ominous horns. You try to get over to the coveted rail position, but nobody will let you in. You try going faster, but your car doesn't respond to the prodding. You try to go slower and a barrage of horns and bumper-riders greet you.

You are lost—like a hare being chased by a fox.

By this time you are feeling lonely and persecuted. You look for a friendly face, but, alas, there's not one in sight . . . only mean, scowling, sniveling pulps of humanity, daring you to make one little mistake so they can rip your auto up into little metal shreds.

At last you approach the off-ramp which will take you out of this mess and into the safe confines of your quiet little home.

Now comes the big test—can you make it across three lanes of thundering traffic? You light a cigarette, remove the sweat from your forehead, and ready for your momentous endeavor.

SCRAPE . . . SCRATCH . . . BOOM! Not quite this time.

Your car limps back into the lane. Again you try to get into the next lane, and this time you make it with only four scratches, 33 horn blasts, 65 glaring, hateful looks, a line of profanity which would make the devil blush, 13 obscene gestures and one lost hubcap.

Figuring that you are getting off easy, your composure returns and your tenacity carries you into the next lane. By this time you are very fortunate in that you are only three miles beyond your turn-off.

You zig-zag twice, spin the wheel and finally descend into an off-ramp which will spirit you to safety.

You say three "Hail, Marys," tip your hat at the St. Christopher's metal on the dash board (even he is looking rather pale) and thank everybody that you are still alive.

And, then, there is always tomorrow!

Local Cystic Fibrosis Fund Drive Sept. 15

Daly City and San Francisco will be playing the piper's tune on Saturday, September 15, to help combat a little-known but common disease which annually afflicts an estimated 25,000 American infants and youngsters.

The fund-raising drive was announced jointly by Mrs. Peter Bencharsky, 45 Nantucket, San Francisco, president of the local chapter of the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation, and Mrs. John Torre, 73 Eastwood, Daly City campaign chairman.

Local Effort

Joining in a nation-wide effort to raise more than two million dollars for the national foundation, some 20 Daly City volunteers will be asking shoppers in the Westlake Shopping Center to donate money for use in the 30 C.F. research, treatment and teaching centers across the nation. One of these centers is located at the East Bay Children's Hospital in Oakland.

The disease they are battling—often called "the Pied Piper disease" because it attacks children—is cystic fibrosis, an inherited chemical malfunction in the genes which affects the workings of the child's glands of external secretion. The complications of the disease involve the digestive system, the sweat glands and the lungs, leaving the child an easy mark for frequent and serious infections. In nearly half the cases diagnosed, the disease kills it tiny victims before they reach school age.

Cure Sought

But thanks to medical research, says Mrs. Torre, there has been a marked increase in the life expectancy of the victime of the disease in the past few years. Ten years ago, she says the life expectancy of the victims was one year, while today it is about eight years, with more and more reaching their teens and early twenties.

While there is no known cure for cystic fibrosis, medical researchers are seeking some control, so that children afflicted with the disease may eventually be able to lead relatively normal lives.

"In addition to our urgent job of educating parents and the general public to the community problem of cystic fibrosis," Mrs. Torre says, "the 150 chapters of the national foundation are joining together to help raise the two million dollars needed to keep the research program going.

"The more we can learn about the disease, the better we will be able to control it, and the longer our children will live. I appeal to all parents and to the general public to help in the fight to control cystic fibrosis."

Anyone interested in aiding in the drive is urged to contact Mrs. Torre or Mrs. Bencharsky.

Chief Eaglewing Preserves The Karuk Indian Tradition

By JACK WOOD

Generations ago, the Karuk Indian tribe — 3,000 to 4,000 strong, inhabited some 60 miles of forested land along the Klamath River, from the tributaries of the Trinity River to Indian Creek in Siskiyou County.

Since then, the tribe has scattered to the winds. Some are in San Diego, some in Los Angeles, others are in the Army and the Navy.

Chief of the tribe, Grover C. Sanderson (Chief Eaglewing), resides two blocks from the Daly City limits at 3155 San Jose avenue.

A grey haired, heavy set man, slightly below medium height, Chief Eaglewing has spent a good portion of his life endeavornig to preserve Indian ways and customs.

Old Tradition

Tall, dark haired Jack Sanderson, advertising salesman for the Westlake Times, is the son of the Karuk chief. Sanderson, who somewhat resembles Robert Taylor with a crew cut, is proud of his Indian ancestry. "Yep, I'm a bow and arrow boy," he boasts.

Jack's father, who raised him in the old tradition, realized when he was a young man that he should preserve for future generations the sacred ceremonial dances, legends, songs, athletic games, arts, crafts and everyday life of the Indian people.

Sun Dances

"I realized that after the Indian boys and girls went to the government schools they lost all interest in their own civilization. Too quickly they were falling into the white man's ways.

For 17 years, Eaglewing set out gathering material from outstanding tribes in the United States. He learned their songs and dances, legends and their sacred ceremonies.

He went over his own territory and made motion pictures of the life and culture of the Indians of today. He photographed sacred ceremonies that have never been photographed before, such as the last of the North Dakota Indian "Sun Dances," where the braves tie leather thongs through the skin of their breasts and dance until the skin breaks.

Peace Treaty

At his San Jose avenue home, the chief was readying Indian costumes and musical instruments and weapons for the big "pow wow" at Guerneville.

He talked of many things. Of his ancestry:

"I'm the Ek-Phin-E-Pa — great-great-grandson of the chief of the Karuks. The ancestral home is Pa-Nom-Neek—meaning Valley Place in Karuk—now Oleans, California.

"Before the white man came, the old Indian houses in the Pa-Nom-Nee were the first dwellings.

"Back in 1852, President Fillmore sent out commissioners to negotiate with our tribe for a peace treaty and for certain portions of the land. Ek-Phin-E-Pa signed the peace treaty."

Grizzly Bear

The conversation turned to the year 1852, just two years after the gold rush, when so many miners came to California for gold — often finding fool's gold and the grizzly bear.

The Indian, too, was afraid of the grizzly bear, the chief admits. The Karuk Indian legend of this bear, he said, concerns nine big brothers "and one runt."

"Each year the grizzly bear would come down from the mountains and eat one of the big brothers. The little brother was a lizard and eventually was the only one left.

He had a vision of wearing a large cedar heart on his chest which he had pulled out from his throat. When the bear came down from the mountain, after eating up all the brothers, the runt tauntingly danced in front of the bear, showing him how he had a bigger heart than the bear and how he had got it. The bear, not wanting to be outdone, reached down his throat, tore out his own heart and died."

Becoming a Brave

"These are some of the stories I have translated from the Indian dialect into English," he said.

Chief Eaglewing has published several books on Indian legends in California. Each legend has its own title.

Proud of his heritage, the chief showed how his father made arrow heads for hunting. He described how he had tanned deer hides for clothes and made tom toms.

He talked of how he was raised by his father in the old ways . . . how he was sent out for ten days into the wilderness to become a brave . . . how he was afraid of the coyotes and the wind, but built a fire and stayed the entire ten days.

The Right Dance

The chief stated he had tried hard to make the Indian pageant recognized at Guerneville, but he really doesn't like the way the local Boy Scouts handle the Indian dances, which they often try to imitate.

"They don't do the dance right," he said.

"An Indian is proud when he dances. The Boy Scout dance is a farce — to an Indian it's a terrible farce."

Chief Eaglewing has three grandsons. The youngest is named Ickfinepa, after him. The next one is Coyote and the eldest is Jack, Jr.

The chief rubbed a squaw's deerskin dress with a steel brush. He reflected that the Indians would have used a punk wood tool.

End of Tradition

Eaglewing, who worked 20 years in the construction trade in San Francisco, and is now retired, is devoting his last days to preserving the Indian tradition.

He doesn't like cheap Indian imitations, which he says "degenerate" the Indian folk lore.

"I still say the authentic Indian sayings and make authentic Indian things to perpetuate the old."

"And when I go, along with the old timers, that'll be the end of it, I think," he concluded.

DANIEL WEBSTER SCHOOL

Following a variety of summer vacation activities, the new "crop" and the returning teachers of Daniel Webster School met Wednesday, Sept. 5, with H. Z. Weibel, principal, to organize and plan for the new school year.

Travel was the most popular choice of the teachers for the summer vacation and ranged from Mrs. Gould seeing Alaska to Mrs. Ruth Rogers enjoying Bermuda, with several teachers seeing a lot of the United States. Summer school, either studying or teaching, was a close second.

Teachers new to the district and grade assignments at Daniel Webster are: Miss Patricia Chan, kindergarten; Mrs. Noreen Kellogg, first grade; Mrs. Lynn Megquier, first grade; Mrs. Bonnie D'Andrea, fourth grade; Mrs. Amy Droke, fifth grade, and Miss Barbara Shiel, sixth grade.

Returning teachers now assigned at Daniel Webster will teach as follows:

Mrs. Eloise Heidland, kindergarten; Mrs. Eleanor Carle, first grade; Mrs. Gladys Gould, second grade; Mrs. Alice Elario, second grade; Mrs. Ann Gray, third grade; Mrs. Barbara Schwartz, third grade; Mrs. Ruth Rogers, fourth grade; Mr. Tom Notaro, fourth and fifth grades; Miss Eunice Wright, fifth grade, and Mrs. Bertha Kessler, fifth grade.

Miss JoAnn Greene will be the school nurse and will spend two full days, Monday and Wednesday of each week, at Daniel Webster.

Mr. Manuel Silva is the custodian, along with Mr. Gregg Arejula, and Mrs. June Braden is secretary.

Among items on the agenda at the opening meeting was a discussion of the year's art program. With Mrs. Helen Cordell back from her art-collecting trip through Europe, the teachers plan, with her help, to place emphasis in this area.

Some part of the time was spent in developing ideas for teacher in-service training through cooperation with the consultants and coordinators in the district and with each other.

Building assignments for the term were voluntary and are as follows: Science, Miss Wright; Art, Miss Shiel; Library, Mrs. Gray; Teaching Aids, Mrs. Schwartz; Pin-Up Boards, Mrs. Kellogg; Sunshine, Mrs. Megquier; Pupil Traffic, Miss Shiel; Duty Schedules, Mrs. Carle; Student Council, Mr. Forcum; Intramural, Mr. Notaro; Audio-Visual Aids, Mrs D'Andrea; Publicity, Mrs. Heidland; J.C.T.A., Mrs. Rogers; United Crusade, Mrs. Elario; Junior Red Cross, Mrs. Droke; American Education Week, Mrs. Kessler; Teacher-In-Charge, Mr. Notaro; Professional Growth and Evaluation, Mrs. Gould.

Decision was made to continue the regular all-school group singing initiated by Mr. Weibel last school year.

The new State Social Studies Framework came up for discussion along with new methods in other subjects.

The teachers saw for the first time the new television set presented to the school by our very helpful and interested PTA group at Daniel Webster.

Daniel Webster has an enrollment of 622 pupils and a total teaching staff of 18 teachers.
